

TASRACING COVID SAFE STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURES

THOROUGHBRED TRIALS - STATEWIDE

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Thoroughbred Trials are to be conducted at a racetrack with no more than 10 people in any one operational location of the racecourse facilities.

Thoroughbred track gallops, jump-outs and trials are critical to the safety and welfare of the horse as well as the efficient operation of normal race meetings. The key differences between Track Gallops, Jump Outs and Trials are:

Track gallops

- These are practice gallops on an official race track surface to assist horses in preparation for racing conditions.
- They can be conducted with one or more horses.
- They are often conducted with a small number of horses on track at one time. (Maximum four horses at any one time.)
- They do not use official starting barriers or track staff, horses simply exercise on the race track.
- Security, track marshals and medical staff will attend.

Jump-outs

- Jump-outs are unofficial trials used by trainers as part of their overall training programs.
- Security, track marshals and medical staff will attend.

Trials

- Trials are used as an extension of track gallops and jump-outs as part of an integrated training schedule to prepare horses for race days.
- Trials are operated under limited full race-day conditions including official times, margins, placings.
- Limited essential racing operational staff are required: vet, two medical staff, one steward, four barrier attendants, one mounted clerk of the course, one Tasracing operational staff member, one broadcast technician, one race caller.
- Security, track marshals and medical staff will attend.

All are critical to the education and fitness preparation of a horse to enable it to race safely and for other horses and jockeys to race safely around it.

This document includes Tasracing's Standard Operating Procedures for thoroughbred track gallops, jump-outs and trials under in Covid-19 conditions.

Tasracing's thoroughbred track gallops, jump-outs and trials will be managed strictly in-line with these CSOPs and will also adhere to WorkSafe Tasmanian's Guidelines for COVID Safe Workplace operations.

Tasracing has allocated a new supervisory role in the form of 'Track Marshall'. These Track Marshalls are Tasracing employees and will oversee and enforce these CSOPs. Tasracing's Track Marshalls will be assisted by Office of Racing Integrity Stewards who have existing powers to enforce all Tasracing trial and race meeting operational procedures.

WorkSafe Tasmania's COVID Safe minimum standards required to be met at a workplace are as follows:

- manage the risks of a person contracting or spreading COVID-19 in the workplace
- implement and maintain a cleaning schedule across the workplace
- have good hygiene procedures and practices (such as washing and/or sanitising of hands)
- ensure workers who have been instructed to quarantine or self-isolate don't come to the workplace
- make sure physical distancing requirements are met by workers, contractors and others entering, leaving or moving around the workplace.
- provide information, training and supervision on how the risks of COVID-19 are to be managed and ensure all processes and procedures are applied by the workers.
- provide information and instruction to other people who attend the workplace about how they are to comply with your processes and procedures, and make sure they apply them.
